JUST PUBLISHED, A NEW ILLUSTRATED POEM.

"In with you, man!" Peliah said, "You'd better try to earn your bread Than like the birds to bill and coo!" "I'll do for them to sigh and woo," For they have nothing else to do."

DAVID AND ANNA MATSON. By Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway.

Editor "New Northwest," Portland, Oregon, WITH BEAUTIFUL ILLUSTRATIONS, AND ELEGANTLY BOUND.

A new epic, from a vigorous and skillful pen, on a subject which occupies a large place in the social discourses of the day. The subject is taken from Mr. Whittier's short narrative of "David Matson," with which the reader is probably familiar. David Matson, a Merimee sailor, was captured by the Algerines (during one of his voyages) and sold into slavery.

After many years he obtained release and was on his way to the home of his boyhood, when he fell in with his old employer, who informed him that his wife, believing him dead, had remarried, and, stung by his trouble, he surrendered all claim as husband and father to the man who had stepped into his place, and departed. Mrs. Duniway has found a theme in this story with which her heart beats in warmest sympathy, and her lines flow on in the smooth endence indicative of the fullest accord. She pictures the gentle, tender, trustful Anna and the wild, covetous Peliah in vivid colors, and how years of poverty and longing, and the cries of the hungry boys, compelled poor Anna to yield to Peliah's importunity.

"Bise, rejoice, My poor, unmade dove," said he, "And look henceforth for love to me." A little further on he says: "Become my wife and you shall be Made happy through prosperity!" While, if she persists in declining his advances, woe-like, he threatens to abandon her to starvation and cold. And this Peliah was a "deacon."

"In exhortations deep and loud," The wanderings of David, his captivity, release, hapless interview with Peliah, discovery of Anna's second wifehood, and his sad going back to Algeria, are all told so pathetically that our feelings are deeply enlisted. No one, with any true sentiment, can read the poem without being thoroughly stirred. The illustrations are in admirable keeping with the passages they are designed to portray, and a fine engraving of the author is a fitting frontispiece. The subject, spirit, fire and passion of the poem should give it an extensive readership, aside from the interest which the literary reputation of the author must awaken in it. As a specimen of bookmaking the volume is certainly beautiful, and would adorn any comfortable.

We know of no work so well adapted as a present. It is printed on heavy tinted paper and most beautifully bound, price, $2.00; full gilt extra, $2.50. For sale by book-sellers, or by mail, post-paid, by S. R. WELLS & Co., Publishers, 737 Broadway, New York.
